Yamamoto New Scalp Acupuncture (YNSA)

The Yamamoto New Scalp Acupuncture (YNSA) was founded in the sixties by Dr. med Toshikatsu Yamamoto (Ph.D.). During the treatment of patients suffering of pain and paralysis he discovered painful points on the skull showing somatoform assignments of the entire body. He systemized this new therapeutic reflex acupuncture form and refined it further in the last 40 years. In addition to the discovery of a new micro-system of the skull Yamamoto modified the oriental abdominal diagnosis system as a diagnostic tool and combined the abdominal diagnostic areas with the individual associated scalp acupuncture points. Moreover, he detected another similar region as the abdominal diagnosis system in the area of the lateral neck triangle, which can be easily used for the diagnosis of indexed YNSA-points at the scalp.

YNSA is great for fast and efficient treatment of headache, pain in the musculo-skeletal system, functional disorders of internal organs and paralysis of various origins and some other neurological disorders. The success in treating patients with pain is following almost immediately after correctly applied needles.
